WWW.CHRISCRAFTSTINGERS.COM Newsletter, March, 2012

Welcome to the March, 2012 Newsletter!

Welcome to the March 2012 newsletter. When I first started working on this newsletter, I looked back in my files and realized that this is the 12th issue of the newsletter - 1 year of newsletters! Can't believe how time flies - I've learned a lot about the Stingers, and appreciate all of the information I've received from all of you.

One of the projects I worked on this past month was setting up a Twitter account so I could send out notifications 'real-time' of Stingers I find for sale. If you follow along in the forums, you already know I post in the forums whenever I find a boat. I will continue to do that in addition to sending out messages via Twitter. If you are interested, search for chriscraftstingers at Twitter.

This month's newsletter is special in that it's the first to include an article written by a guest writer. Starting with the February, 2012 issue of the newsletter, I've writing articles about winter projects Stinger owners are working on. I reached out to Ed Missavage, owner of the 1988 311 Stinger named "Bad Example", to get more information regarding his boat. Ed went beyond helping me and suggested he write the article. I hope you enjoy it as much as I have!

As always, if you have any information regarding Stingers, their production, or any parts, please feel its new owner in Texas.

The boat had a decrepit pair of Mercury 175 outboards; breakdowns and fuel burn rate were problems, so a pair of Suzuki four stroke outboards was installed. Regrettably, the power is at least 300 pounds heavier than previous so the scuppers went under.

Interested in more information about your Stinger? Get the original documentation for your boat including original purchase sheet and warranty claims info. View a sample documentation packet on the parts page of the website today.

Several years of hard duty fishing the Gulf of Mexico every weekend caused a lot of wear and tear. The hull - to - deck joint required fortification by thru-bolting every 12". The large fish box, lacking insulation would melt ice far quicker than desired; also, pounding through two to three foot chop at 30 to 40 mph took its toll on the mid-section and keel cracks developed next to the lifting strakes, where the boat would take on about one gallon per minute into the bilge.

The decision was made to fix these problems rather than cut losses. First investment was ordering a high-flotation full width bracket and close in the cut transom. I wanted a trusted boat yard to do this free to contact me. Han.

Not Just a Winter Project – from “Bad Example” to “Deep Eddy” by Ed Missavage

In early 2006, I was shopping for a 30'-plus fast fish boat on eBay and came up second best on a Stinger 311. Within a few minutes of the closing of that auction, I received a message: "If you liked that one you'll love mine." Within a few weeks, that boat and trailer was placed on a truck and headed from the Atlantic City New Jersey area to installation and a few other major modifications to make the boat better, but unfortunately, they were booked up with bottom jobs and sent me to another well-respected provider. Boat was taken to my second choice and sat for four weeks waiting for an estimate for the work. Pricing finally came at $23,000 to do just 70% of the items on my list, so I told them it's clear – they've been sniffing the resin. With a dollar value for the work in mind, I took on the work myself.

I rented a secure workshop on a month-to-month basis and moved the boat in. I started removing items like outboards, rotten transom wood, the console, the sagging floor.

Then I started building new flooring using Baltec Airex panels & epoxy sandwich construction methods. Moved the console forward by 30" to get better balance. Cut out the fish box and applied two layers of insulating foam to its backside. While the floor was out, filled the hollow lifting strakes with crack sealing epoxy, and bolstered all the bulkheads and stringers with thick fiberglass reinforcements. Raised the floor by three inches at the back and cut new higher scuppers.

I used two 1.5" thick Airex panels bonded together for the new full-height transom, bolted on the new high-flotation bracket, and sealed everything with plenty of epoxy and 3M 5200.

I built a very useful leaning post-live well-ice box-fresh water holding tank-trash bin out of plywood, epoxy and Lexan viewing window, where just a hard leaning post was mounted before. Added jump seats to the back, where wet tail was previously. Now there's room for four guests to sit or someone could lie down at the back end. Plus there's about three extra feet now on back to fish or relax.

At this point, I've been working on this project for nine months, devoting almost every weekend day and several night hours each week to making the boat everything it should be. I know that the construction is first rate and nothing is going to rot away or rattle loose.

Final fairing and smoothing has begun, along with detail work for the seams around the new leaning post, the new in-floor storage holds, and painting using a two-part automotive urethane plus clear-coat from a HVLP gun. Anticipated completion of these upgrades is another month or so – final item will be renaming the boat to "Deep Eddy" I feel the boat will provide me many additional years of enjoyment and adventure.

Asking Price: $7,500

This is a 1988 Chris Craft stinger. It has the original OMC 4.6L V6. it has about 820hrs. It is in good condition, it had a tune up at the end of the season to tighten up some belts, etc. These pictures are old, but the boat is currently winterized, so I can't get any current ones. You would not believe the attention you get for this boat. In addition to being bright red, it is a Chris Craft, these boats are instant classics and extremely well built. The Stinger line is famous because the original pilot of Miami Vice featured the 39' version of this boat. I have to sell because I'm looking at business school, and I won't have time for the toys. I have a great arrangement for moorage in lake washington as well, in a marina, on a boat lift, for $225/month. We can talk about transferring the lease. This price comes with the boat trailer and accessories, lines, fenders, extra aluminum prop, etc. If you would like to see comparable sale prices or find out more about the history of these boats, check out www.chriscraftstingers.com this boat is on the registry there at: Seattle 202 Gallery

Well here it is. Dual engine, 350's(refreshed), omc cobra outdrives(rebuilt), it needs some love and I was doing it here and there. It has a Lectrasan toilet system in it($2500). It sits on a 3 axle trailer that pulls but I would not go very far. It is an 87 and 26 foot long. Research the 260 and you will see its one hell of a boat. Right now starboard engine needs to be put back in as I just refreshed it.
